HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, April 30. Immediately after the reading of the journal the speaker presented the veto message of President Hayes upon the army appropriation bill and it was read by the clerk. On the conclusion of the reading, which consumed thirty-five minutes, the speaker offered the following order: "Ordered, that the message of the president, just read, be referred at length on the journal, as required by the constitution of the United States, and that the house will to-morrow proceed to consider said message, and thereafter to reconsider a bill making appropriations for the support of the army for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1880, and that said message be printed." The order was adopted.

A bill passed appropriating the requisite amount to pay J. B. Eads the sums due for constructing jetties at the South Pass.

The house adjourned and the democratic caucus was announced to meet forthwith.

SENATE.

Consideration was resumed of the house bill providing for certain expenses of the present session of congress and for other purposes, the pending question being whether it was in order to amend, as proposed by Senator Plumb, the appropriation of $136,000 to pay the mileage for the present session. The amendment was decided in order by a vote of 33 against 23. It was then discussed, and agreed to. It was then passed.

The senate considered a bill to prevent the introduction of contagious or infectious diseases into the United States.

GENERAL NEWS.

Vanderbilt's Excursion.

CLEVELAND, April 30. Wm. H. Vanderbilt and party on their special train passed through Cleveland at 11:57 o'clock this a. m. The train is to make the run from Buffalo to Chicago in 12 hours.

Sustaining Hayes.

HARRISBURG, PA., April 30.—In the senate to-day the following resolution was introduced: That the general assembly of Pennsylvania expresses its hearty endorsement to the president's veto to the revolutionary riders attached to the army appropriation bill, and hereby instructs her senators and requests the members of congress representing Pennsylvania to sustain the course of President Hayes upon this measure and others calculated to assail the constitutional prerogatives of any branch of the government or to open the door to fraud in national elections. The resolution was adopted; yeas 30 and nays 12—a strict party vote except three greenbackers, two of whom voted with the democrats and one with the republicans.

Robbery Defeated.

PITTSBURG, April 30. A bold but unsuccessful attempt was made at noon to-day to rob the Workingmen's Savings Bank, on Ohio street, Allegheny. The bookkeeper of the bank had gone to dinner leaving the cashier, Geo. C. Walter, alone. Two men entered the bank, one of them advanced in the rear of the counter and asked for silver for a dollar bill. When the cashier advanced with the change in his hand he was confronted with a cocked revolver and told to make no noise or he would be shot. Dropping the silver Walter seized the revolver and succeeded in wrenching it from his assailant, who then clambered up and got inside of the counter and was reaching for money on the counter, when Walter opened fire on him, firing two shots at him, and also two at the other robber, who in the meantime had climbed over the front counter. The strangers were dismayed by the warlike reception and turned toward the door and fled and are not yet arrested.

Later developments in the assault in the Workingmen's Savings Bank to-day are the thieves succeeded in carrying off $2300, but in their hurried flight dropped a package containing $700 which was picked up on the street and returned to the bank officers. The thieves on leaving the bank made for the river and succeeded in getting over to this side, where the clue to their whereabouts was lost.

A Democratic Funeral.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The democratic senators held a caucus this morning lasting about an hour, but no action was taken except to determine informally that the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill must not be brought forward for discussion before next week, and in the meantime the democratic senators will meet their party friends in the house in a joint caucus for consultation in regard to the proper course to be pursued in regard to the president's veto of the army appropriation bill, and the political situation generally. The veto message was not discussed.

Immediately after adjournment of the house to-day a well-attended democratic caucus was held for the purpose of determining what course shall be pursued in regard to the president's veto of the army appropriation bill. After some discussion upon the proposition to refer the veto message through the judiciary committee to a special select committee with view to obtaining a report which should include what was alleged to be its incorrect interpretations of the purpose and effect of the 11th section of the bill, it was decided to bring the measure to a direct vote to-morrow without debate or reference. The resolution embodying this conclusion was finally adopted with great unanimity and is as follows:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this caucus that the bill making the appropriation for the support of the army should pass, notwithstanding the objection of the president, and that we will proceed to take a vote on it to-morrow without debate. The caucus then proceeded to consider a question of wider scope but greater importance, viz: what further action should be taken by the democratic party concerning the 19 appropriation bills after they shall both have been defeated by presidential veto, the veto of the legislative, executive and judicial bill with its political section being, of course, foreshadowed by the present message. An animated discussion ensued in which among others, Randall, Blackburn, Tx and Stephens participated, it was finally determined to refer the whole subject to the ways committee of the house and senate which originally framed the political section in controversy, the house committee being revived for this purpose and instructed to confer with a similar committee of democratic senators, and after mature consideration to report their recommendations to a full caucus. The membership of this committee is as follows: On the part of the house of representatives, Messrs Carlile, Cox of New York, Springer, Tucker, Atkins, Clymer, Reagan, Bicknell and Phelps. On the part of the senate Thurman, Whyte, Kernan, Saulsbury, Jones, [illegible] Vance. At the conclusion of to-day's proceedings a strict injunction of secrecy was imposed upon all members, but this was subsequently removed so far as to authorize the publication of the conclusion reached by the caucus.

Stage Robbery.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30. A Eureka, Nevada, dispatch says that the Ruby Hill stage was held near Eureka last night by three masked men. The passengers and express box were robbed.

In Jeka last night two men went to livery stables bulldozed the hostlers, took two of the best horses and started off pursued by a sheriff's posse. They were overtaken this morning at Railroad canon. The thieves showed game and one, named John Sullivan was killed. The other was wounded and taken out. Sullivan was a Massachusetts man, and he has a wife.

Lottery Fraud.

LOUISVILLE, April 30. Judge Jackson in circuit court to-day rendered a lengthy decision in lottery cases, which has been pending before him for a year or more. The opinion is to the effect that the granting under which Mm. Miller & Co. claim to operate is illegal, and the managers of the same were fined $500 each. The venders of tickets in this lottery were also fined $500 each.

Health Convention.

MEMPHIS, April 30. A convention of representatives from the state boards of health of Michigan, Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas and Tennessee met this evening and effected a temporary organization by calling Gen. Cyrus Bussey, of New Orleans, to the chair. The object of the convention is to have concerted action in preventing the introduction and spread of yellow fever in the United States. Without transacting further business the convention adjourned till to-morrow.

FOREIGN.

Sir Robert Peel's Question.

LONDON, April 30.—In the house of commons to-night Sir Robert Peel, liberal conservative, will ask the government, inasmuch as a few years ago in the interests of humanity it stepped in and put a stop to the sufferings of Turkish prisoners in Neapolitan prisons, whether her majesty's government will take any steps in the interests of humanity to mitigate the horrors and atrocities amid which the reign of terror is now carried on in Russia over eighty millions of people.

Sir Robert Peel complained that there was no minister present to answer his question in relation to the recent events in Russia of which he gave notice publicly yesterday. He also complained that the speaker had altered the wording of the question. The speaker explained that the question in the form submitted containing argumentative could not be put and it must be raised in the form of a motion. O'Gorman Waterford said the absence of the minister when notice had been given of a question to which he should reply was disrespectful to the house.

The Situation in Russia.

LONDON, April 30.—It seems to be the impression at Constantinople and St. Petersburg that several powers are willing to consent to Russia's retaining a portion of her troops at the central position in Roumelia, this last condition only to commence evacuation August 31st.

Bulgaria's New King.

TIRNOVA, April 30.—In the assembly to-day a telegram from the emperor and empress of Russia was read thanking the deputies for the election of Prince Alexander. The assembly adjourned until recalled by him.

The Newmarket Races.

LONDON, April 30.—The race for 2,000 guineas stakes was won to-day at Newmarket by Lord Falmouth's Chanberg; Gouten's Codogan second, Count De La Grange's Roy-ender, 3d. There were fifteen starters. In betting there were twenty to one against Walderf ten to one against 2d horse, and six to one against 3d horse. There were twenty-two to one against Uncas in betting on Chester Trades cup, Wednesday next. Parole is quoted five to four, sometimes even, against the field.

A Terrible Fire in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 30.—A great fire occurred in the city of Orenburg, on the Ural river on Monday and Tuesday last, destroying the principal part. The loss is enormous. More than half of the population are destitute of food and shelter and a number of persons are injured. A dispatch from the governor of Orenburg to the minister says the violent storm assisted in spreading the flames Monday and Tuesday night. The best quarters of the town are in ashes.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

The force in Indian Territory and vicinity is ample for the purpose and the administration is determined to enforce the president's order and protect the treaty and other rights of Indians.

JOB WORK.

Hayes was once a brigadier.

Will the northern organ please keep us informed on the progress of the contempt proceedings?

The daily running expenses of congress are $300,000. This is a strong argument against a long session.

The president's message was quickly sent to congress so as to settle the question quickly. He should be praised for this.

Mr. Hendricks is still determined not to accept the second place on the democratic ticket. He is not apt to be troubled about either the first or second place.

The northern organ of the Atchison road still indulges in some glittering generalities about the railroad question, but does not condescend to notice the full text of the decision.

Ex-Senator Howe of Wisconsin is talked of for chief justice of the supreme court. This was the department in which he won his first distinction, and it was a mistake when he left the bench for politics.

It has been hinted that we refused to publish the Reed & Teller advertisement because the money did not accompany it. This is untrue. We would trust any of the paid servants of the Atchison road for we know they must be flush.

Our steel rail manufacturers say they can manufacture steel rails as cheaply as they can be manufactured in England. It costs there $19.42 a ton, and American rails sell for $44 a ton. There must be some profit in the business.

It is strange that the Atchison road did not keep its northern organ informed about the payment of the interest on the Denver and Rio Grande bonds. If it had, the organ could not have made such an egregious mistake as it did yesterday.

The Kansas City Mail is willing to support Mr. Tilden in 1880 provided that before he is nominated he will "kneel at the feet of William Allen, ask his pardon for treacherously defeating him in 1875, ask him also what he shall do to be saved, and then let old Peter Cooper baptize him in the true democratic faith."

The Tribune calls attention to the fact that the present earnings of the D. & R. G. road are not sufficient to pay the interest on the bonded debt. This was a bad blunder. Before the change, the earnings were much more than sufficient. It is a bad comment on the Atchison management.

"The court below will recognize the prior right of that company to occupy and use the Grand canon for the purpose of constructing the road therein, and will enjoin the San Juan company, its officers, agents, servants and employes from interfering or obstructing that company in such occupancy, use and construction." Extract from the decision of the U. S. supreme court.

The following are the last return of the earnings of the D. & R. G.:

	Third week.	21 Days in
Oct. 1878	$28,383.80	$81,590.00
Nov. 1878	27,754 01	83,493 6[illegible]
April 1879	21,603.71	64,432.83
April 1878	21,437 [illegible]	52,8[illegible] 67

The increase of April, 1879, over 1878 appears slight when we remember the increase in Atchison earnings for the same time was 150 per cent.

A skeleton of a Christian leader is as follows:

1. Lie.
2. Another lie.
3. An infamous lie.
4. Vim, vinegar and vitriol.

A development of these points, under the facile, graceful pen of its elegant editor makes a most brilliant article. When he is particularly inspired he usually adds another paragraph on Pickwickian.

Mr. Randall gave New England one chairmanship and the middle states one. The southern states got seventeen; the "border" states nine, and the western states fourteen. The distribution is an equitable one, and is gauged by the importance of the sections. Denver News.

New England and the middle states receive only two chairmen, and the south seventeen, and yet the News says "the distribution is an equitable one and gauged by the importance of the sections." In other words, New England and the middle states are to the southern states as 2 is to 17. Let us look at the facts. Both sections cast 175 votes in the electoral college which would seem to show that the population was about the same. In New England, and the middle States there are $461,000,000 in banking capital and $1,543,000,000 in deposits, while in the south there are only $70,000,000 in banking capital and $85,000,000 in deposits. The south pays the national government $13,192,[illegible] annually in taxes, while New York alone pays $109,010,759 56. Other comparisons might be made to show the relative importance of the two sections. In fact though the south has more than eight times the chairmanships of New England and the middle states, it is only equal to them in population, and vastly inferior in every respect except extent of area.

THE VETO.

The president's veto, published in our telegraph columns of yesterday, is a very satisfactory document. It properly asserts the dignity of the executive against the encroachments of congress. It opens with a consideration of how far our present election laws, which allow the use of the army at the polls, may be considered dangerous. It shows conclusively that the danger described by the democrats does not exist. It then considers how far the general government should control and conduct elections. In two cases at least it may interfere: First where officers of the general government are being elected and, secondly to carry out section 4 of the fifteenth amendment to the constitution which reads: "The right of the citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States, or by any power, on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude." The authority for doing this is found in the section following the one quoted which reads: "Congress shall have the power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation."

In regard to the right of congress to coerce him he says in language worthy of repetition "the new doctrine if maintained, will result in the consolidation of an unchecked and despotic power in the house of representatives. A bare majority in the house will become the government. The executive will no longer be what the framers of the constitution intended—an independent branch of government. It is clearly the constitutional duty of the president to exercise discretion and judgment upon all bills presented to him without constraint or duress from any other branch of government. To say that a majority of either or both houses of congress may insist on an approval of any bill under penalty of stopping all the operations of the government for want of necessary supplies is to deny to the executive that share of the legislative power which is plainly conferred by the second section of the seventh article of the constitution. It strikes at one of the constitutional prerogatives of the president. This puts the whole question in a nutshell, and the position taken cannot be controverted.

The veto will do a good deal to bind the party together. The conklings, Howes and Camerons can no longer indulge in cheap invectives against the executive. During all this squabble in the party, Mr. Hayes has been at work quietly keeping his promises. He has put the finances in good shape, reformed the civil service to the extent of saving millions of dollars and overthrown congressional trading in government patronage. In no instance has he been found untrue to the traditions and principles of his party. As the people long ago recognized this, the politicians now will have to. The foolish talk about want of backbone has never had any basis in fact. Now that he is all there is left of the republican party in the general government he must be recognized as the representative of the party.

The important question now is what will the democracy do about it. It certainly has an elephant on its hands. The democratic leaders dare not carry out the policy of Senator Beck which was to adjourn and let the army starve if the president refused to sign the army bill. They would not dare to face the indignation of the country with such a record. They put themselves in the first place in a false position and are now compelled to make the best of it. The only sensible thing that can be done is to back squarely down, pass the appropriation bill with no riders, and then if they wish, make the riders a bill by themselves. This may in part set them right before the country however distasteful it may be. It is hardly to be expected however that hot heads like Blackburn, Hooper and Singleton in the house, and Beck, Garland and Gordon in the senate, will allow so prudent a course to be pursued.

A Rising English Politician.

One illustration of this is to be found in the growing prominence accorded in the talk of London society to Sir Charles Dilke. Five years ago, when the Beaconsfield government came in, the Chelsea baronet was, as you know, perhaps the most unpopular man in the house, and out of the house people, that is people whose opinions get themselves quoted, talked of him very much as Gambetta was talked of at imperialist tables in Paris before the Franco-German war. Now he seems to have everything his own way with his own party in the house, and he is quoted and discussed out of the house as an authority. His lucky predictions as to the trouble England would get herself into in Afghanistan and in Zululand have had much to do with this no doubt; but these predictions he was enabled to make simply because he is almost the only English member of parliament who takes pains to inform himself thoroughly as to questions of foreign and colonial policy. He has a sort of organized foreign office of his own, in the correspondence which he keeps up all over the world, and his corresponents it must be remembered were picked up by him in his personal travels which have carried him around the globe. His capacity for work is enormous. He is a clear, good speaker; he is only thirty-four years old, and unless I am very much mistaken he is just now the most promising politician on the island. He is bold, and judicious, too, in his own estimate of the present situation. N. Y. World Correspondence.

Miss Thursby.

The success of Miss Emma Thursby in Paris is regarded as follows in Art Journal:

"The fair young artist with whose praise Paris has been ringing for some days past is named Miss Thursby. She came out a fortnight since without fuss and without puffs, at a Chatelet concert, and last Sunday excited the enthusiasm of the numerous audience of the Popular Concerts. This new star comes from the American firmament. She was born at Brooklyn; her mother is descended from an old and respected family in Long Island, and her father is an Englishman. When six years old she gave evidence of vocal ability, which induced her parents to develop that valuable natural gift. She was first sent to a private educational establishment in Brooklyn, and then put under a well known professor in the same town. Like Albani, she made herself known at the outset by her singing of sacred music. She was engaged as a member of the choir at Williamsburg and Plymouth successively; her fine resonant voice was quickly developed and speedily attracted attention. Last year Mr. Maurice Strakosch, dazzled by the new enchantress, engaged her for a tour in Europe, and bound himself by agreement to pay her the enormous sum of $100,000, but, having subsequently concluded an engagement with Madame Adelina Patti, he requested to be relieved from his responsibility. Before venturing to meet a Parisian audience, Miss Thursby sang in London, where the press was most liberal in its praise. Since the time of Jenny Lind, no artist achieved a greater success. Miss Thursby's voice is soprano sfogato; her high notes are astonishingly resonant. The young lady is an eminently sympathetic artist, for whom difficulty does not exist. She has hitherto refused to sing on the stage, though she has received the splendid offers. She wishes still to shine in concerts, where she stands at present unrivaled."

"Shoot Him on the Spot."

Not long ago General Dix gave to a reporter of the Evening Post an extremely interesting description of the state of affairs that led to the promulgation of his illustrious order—"If any one attempts to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot." We print the General's narrative in his own words:

"At the time of my sending the order to shoot any man that attempted to haul down the American flag, perfect apathy reigned in Washington. The authorities looked quietly on, and saw our forts, arsenals and revenue cutters stolen without one word of remonstrance. I confess that my blood boiled.

"To take care of the revenue cutters was a part of my duty as Secretary of the Treasury, and I determined not to leave it undone. Hearing that the Robert McClelland was in danger of falling into the hands of the conspirators at New Orleans through the treachery of its commander, Captain Breshwood, I despatched to that city Mr. W. H. Jones, chief clerk in the First Comptroller's office, with instructions to Captain Breshwood to proceed to New York without delay. I wanted to get the vessel in safe quarters. The legislature of Louisiana was in session, contemplating the passing of an ordinance of secession. Several states had already seceded, and my efforts to get the specie out of the New Orleans mint there, were $800,000 there at the time, had been unsuccessful. The director of the mint refused to recognize my authority. When Jones reached the city he sent me a despatch to the effect that Captain Breshwood refused positively in writing to obey my orders, and that his refusal was by the advice of the collector of the port. I immediately left the White House, where I was staying temporarily, went to my room in the treasury building, sat down and, obeying the impulse of the moment, wrote the following answer to Jones's despatch:

"TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
January 29, 1861.

"W. Hemphill Jones, New Orleans:

"Tell Lieutenant Caldwell (of the revenue cutter) to arrest Captain Breshwood, assume command of the cutter, and obey the order through you. If Captain Breshwood, after arrest, undertakes to interfere with the command of the cutter, tell Lieutenant Caldwell to consider him as a mutineer and treat him accordingly. If any one attempts to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot.

"JOHN A. DIX,
Secretary of the Treasury."

"When I had finished writing this despatch I thought of taking it over to the president for his approval. But remembering his caution and prudence, especially his paramount desire that if there be blood shed the north should not spill the first drop, I concluded to act at once and on my own responsibility. I gave the letter to my clerk, who copied it, and whom I sent directly with the copy to the telegraph office. The letter itself, as was my custom with the originals of public documents, I threw into a drawer reserved for the purpose.

"Receiving no reply from Jones, I feared that my despatch had been intercepted; and two or three days afterwards, at the next cabinet meeting, I remarked to Mr. Buchanan: 'I am afraid, Mr. President, that we have lost another revenue cutter,' explaining to him the loss of the Robert McClelland.

"'What did you do about it?' asked the president.

"'I sent word to Jones to have Breshwood arrested, to put Caldwell in command, and, if any one attempted to haul down the American flag, to shoot him on the spot.'

"He started and said somewhat sternly, with an air of incredulity, 'Did you write that?'

"'No, I telegraphed it,' I replied. He never alluded to the matter again, although I saw him almost constantly until the 4th of March following. About a week afterwards Louisiana seceded. Captain Breshwood saying that he acted under the order of the legislature, had meanwhile transferred the revenue cutter to the care of that body. When the ordinance of secession passed he hoisted the flag of Louisiana in place of the stars and stripes.

"An ordinary seaman on board of the cutter saw where the American flag was secreted after it had been taken down, and when General Butler reached New Orleans, the spirited young fellow hastened to the cutter, took the flag from its place of concealment and gave it to the general, who it now is. It is now in my possession. Upon my recommendation the patriotic seaman was appointed a lieutenant in the revenue service, where he did gallant work throughout the war. He died a short time ago.

"Mr. Seward thought that the war there should be a war would be over in sixty days, at least. I did not think so. My idea was to concentrate a large force and discipline it; but public opinion and congress hurried the army on to disaster at Bull Run. What I had seen in the war of 1812, where I was an adjutant of a battalion, made me distrustful of the strength of undisciplined militia.

"Although at the time the president was extremely cautious, most of the cabinet vigorously appreciated the situation, especially Mr. Stanton, the attorney-general, Mr. Holt, the secretary of war, Mr. King, the postmaster-general. I remember that Judge Black, too, behaved very well.

"The order to Jones, very unexpectedly to me, leaked out through the persons who had intercepted it, and was soon the subject of remark in Washington, where it was accorded a variety of receptions. One day at dinner in the White House, a large number of guests being present, a niece of the president's turned suddenly to me with the question, 'Did you issue that order?' She was, I believe, connected by marriage with a prominent southern family. At any rate her sympathies were strongly with the south, and were arrayed in the extreme. I answered her very quietly that I did. She straightened herself, and with a bearing of queenly dignity and authority, not devoid of a certain spice of sarcasm, said, 'What authority had you for doing it?' 'Oh, Madame,' I replied, 'it was a sentiment.' The president made no remark."

Patrick's Theology.

"Patrick," said a priest, "the widow Molony tells me you have stolen one of her finest pigs. Is that so?" "Why, yer honor—" "What have you done with it?" "Killed and ate it, yer honor." "Oh, Patrick, when you are brought face to face with the widow and pig on judgment day, what account will you be able to give of yourself when the widow accuses you of the theft?" "Did you say she would be there, yer riverance?" "Sure I did." "Well then, your reverence I'll say, 'Mrs. Molony there's your pig.'"

LAKE COUNTY, COLORADO.
PROPRIETORS.
REV. JOSEPH ADAMS, MRS. J. A. D. ADAMS,

Lead ville.

The Springs are situated at the mouth of Cottonwood Canon, in a most beautiful country, salubrious atmosphere surrounded by scenery of the most gorgeous description, being in the very heart of the grand range of the Rocky Mountains, Mount Yale being immediately to the north and Princeton, south, while the crystal waters of the Cottonwood river (abundant with trout), twist, turn, leap, and plunge into the Arkansas about six miles from the Hot Springs.

The medicinal virtues of these springs have not been fully tested, but after an experience of five years they have been found to be a specific for catarrh, rheumatism and leaded persons; also highly beneficial for sore eyes, indigestion, dyspepsia, and all scrofulous affections. The above proprietors have only recently purchased these springs, and at present can only accommodate about a dozen persons. We are now busy in erecting a building which will enable us to entertain about fifty patients and hope to be ready in about three months from date.

A very comfortable bath house has just been completed, adjoining the house, so that the most delicate can now bathe without exposure to colds.

TERMS:

Our present terms are $2 per day or $10 per week including baths for those who are able to help themselves, but those requiring an assistant will be charged accordingly. No reasonable effort will be spared to make all comfortable and happy.

"Confederate Cross-roads" is the name given to Washington by the Cleveland Herald.

The general diffusion of the colored race through the country will do a great deal to obliterate the color line.

Among the doorkeepers in the senate gallery are one ex-confederate major general and the famous rebel cavalry officer Major Harry Gilmore.

The veto of the army appropriation bill carries great weight with the independent voter because of the unpartisan manner in which President Hayes has performed his duties.

It is a noticeable fact that none of the the Santa Fe organs have either published or commented on the full text of the last two paragraphs of the United States Supreme Court decision.

Among the democratic precedents for using troops at the polls is the one established by President Buchanan in 1857, when the marines were ordered to attend the polls at a Washington municipal election.

The tendency to cultivate the English language on the continent is seen by the fact that English only is spoken in the family of the crown prince of Germany. The English tongue may yet supplant the French as the court language of the world.

Mr. Hayes has decided to do without the appropriations. He should be privileged to indulge his fancy. Denver News.

No, he has rather decided to do what he can toward having every legal voter cast one unintimidated ballot and have that vote honestly counted.

The question which the supreme court will be called upon to decide in the quo warranto case is whether a foreign corporation shall be allowed to lease and operate a railroad in this state. The statute give no such authority, and corporations being mere creatures of the law have no rights or franchises except those expressly granted.

Owing to some misrepresentations of a tory speaker, Mr. Bright makes the following general criticism on tories: "I do not know which is more apparent among the tory speakers their ignorance or their facility for lying. The man whose speech you send me is largely guilty of both. He may not know he is ignorant, but he cannot be ignorant that he lies. I think the speaker was named Smith. He is a discredit to the numerous family of that name."

Fred Douglass in a recent lecture alluding to the negro exodus says, "The trouble is due to the efforts of the whites to force the colored people back into slavery; that is done by a system of over-charging, through which the blacks are kept always in debt to their employers, who take advantage of ignorance to practice the greatest extortions upon them. This is probably a partial explanation. If the whites would only frankly admit the injustice done in various ways to the blacks and promise reforms it would do more to allay the unsettled feeling there than blank denials of any cause for it.

The time for honest expressions regarding presidential candidates is at hand. By and by policy rather than conviction will influence most expressed opinions. The York Commercial gives this expression: "The New York Times says that Grant is neither its first nor its second choice for president. The Commercial say ditto. It is free to confess that Roscoe Conkling is its first love and James G. Blaine its second. If it has a third it is Vice-President Wheeler or Senator Edmunds; but it accepts the situation and will take General Grant, as it cannot obtain either its first, second or third."

Mr. Blackburn in his famous speech cheered by all democrats said "we do not intend to stop until we have stricken the last vestige of your war measures from the statute book." How far the president had a right to consider the action of the democracy revolutionary may be considered from such utterances as the above by democratic leaders. Mr. Blackburn is careful to say "your war measures," and in that expression brings up the sectional issue as much as any republican by waving the bloody shirt. The "your war measures" were the measures of the friends of the union to put down a wicked and uncalled-for rebellion.

The Denver News, speaking of the president's failure to sign the army appropriation bill, says: "The manhood was not in the man all high conceptions of executive duty and independence were cast aside, and the president of the United States became the mere tool of the designing and unscrupulous radical leaders who are sworn to rule or ruin." It is necessary for a democratic paper to make some criticism on the president, but we did not suppose that the News, after the publication of the veto, would make such an absurd criticism. His veto is founded on grounds of public policy and constitutional law. The simple fact that Mr. Hayes is so intensely unpopular with the stalwart wing of the republican party ought to have prevented any one from charging partisanship on him. It is very fair evidence that Mr. Hayes is somewhat independent when he is so intensely disliked by the extremists of both parties. Mr. Conkling call him "Mr. Hayes" in one end of the capitol and Mr. Blackburn calls him a usurper in the other end.

Union Pacific Lands.

The Hon. A. J. Poppleton, attorney of the Union Pacific Railroad, and L. Burnham, land commissioner, have received telegrams the past week announcing that the Supreme Court of the United States had reached a decision in the case of Platte vs. the Union Pacific Railroad, to determine the validity of the railroad company's title to the lands which Mr. Schurz has alleged is not good against pre-emptors. The supreme court decides that the land grant to the Union Pacific Railroad was a final disposition of the lands, which forever settles the question and leaves the "pre emptors" in the attitude of squatters, where the U. P. Co. claim they belong. The case was brought at the request of the Union Pacific Railroad Company in order to settle the uncertain point as to whether under the land grant land could be pre-empted. The case was pushed through the courts as rapidly as possible, Platte being represented by no less eminent counsel than Judge Wakely, of this city. The case was first brought before Judge Dundy in the United States District Court. It was appealed and finally argued in the United States Supreme Court, at Washington, a few weeks since. Judge Wakely, Mr. Lownds, and Attorney General Devens appearing for the pre emptors and Shellabarger & Wilson, of Washington, and Sidney Bartlett, of Boston, for the Union Pacific Railroad. The holding of the court is that a mortgage of $10,000,000 given by the railroad company on the lands, of which $7,000,000 remains unpaid, was a final disposition of them, which does not leave them open for pre-emptors.

The uncertainty which has existed in regard to the land of the Union Pacific railroad has undoubtedly lessened the amount of sales. At the same time a number have squatted on Union Pacific lands in the hope that the supreme court would grant them the right of pre-emption. The decision applies to the Kansas Pacific land grant as well as to that of the utmost importance to the stockholders of those two roads.

The entire land grant of the Union Pacific Railroad Company was originally about 11,500,000 acres, including the agricultural, grazing and waste lands. Up to January 1, 1879, about 1,700,000 acres had been sold. The balance is covered by this decision. It is estimated that there remains about 1,500,000 acres of good agricultural land. The number of pre-emptions annulled by this decision is estimated at about 700. Omaha Journal of Commerce.

Oddities of Orators.

The methods of preparing speeches, and the manner of speaking among celebrated orators, are as various as the orators themselves. Some, with a great talent of expression, and a natural ability to give easy and rapid utterance to thought, trust to the inspiration of the moment, and speak off-hand, or, at least without written preparation. Such is the case with many noted preachers, among others, with Spurgeon and Beecher. Others make notes or headings of their subject, and frame here and there a sentence; they leave the rest to a careful study of their subject and to the moment of speaking. Others, again, carefully write out the whole of their speech, and either commit it to memory or con it over very thoroughly before appearing in public to deliver it. Webster and Everett always carefully prepared their orations in this way, while Clay often spoke with little or no preparation.

John Bright makes notes and headings of his speeches, and with great care writes off and commits to memory their most important passages. Gladstone jots down only facts and figures and for his expressions, trusts entirely to the moment of speaking. Lord Derby wrote out every word, and usually committed his speech to memory. M. Thiers was equally as precise, while Gambetta, the greatest of living French orators, speaks extempore, and his marvelous eloquence is the result of the inspiration of the moment. Sumner precomposed verbally his great speeches in the laboratory of his brain, memorizing them, afterward able to produce the eloquent sentences in the order in which he had thought them out. A gentleman who once called at his rooms in Washington, was told by his young negro servant, "Massa Sumner, he gone to de senate to make him speech."

"What speech?" asked the gentleman in surprise.

"Why, dat ar speech he's been hollering out in bed every morain' dese free weeks."

Orators are peculiarly liable to that momentary sensation, which Collins, in his "Ode to the Passions," has graphically described:

"First fear his hand, its skill to try,
Amid the chords bewildered laid,
And back recoiled, he knew not why,
Even at the sound himself had made."

As a rule orators manifest a painful anxiety about their speeches. They are uneasy and nervous, as if anticipating failure. This is due to the very sensitive organization which makes them orators.

"Why, how nervous you are," said a friend, on taking Canning's hand, just before he rose to speak.

"Am I?" was the prime minister's reply. "Then I shall make a good speech."

Daniel Webster, on the other hand, was cool, calm, collected. His nerves were of iron. Everything had been thought out before he rose to speak.

"Mr. Webster," asked a friend, nervously grasping him by the arm, on the morning when he was to reply to Hayne, "Mr. Webster, are you ready?"

The great man, bringing his open right hand vertically down into the palm of the left, quietly said: "I have got four fingers in."

"Four fingers" was, among sportsmen, the mark of an unusually heavy charge for a gun. Mr. Hayne found out how heavy the load was.

A junior counsel once congratulated Sir William Follet on his perfect composure in the prospect of the great case he was about to try. Sir William merely asked his friend to feel his hand, which was wet from nervous anxiety.

This nervousness and anxiety seems a condition of oratorical success. The late Lord Derby, "the Rupert of debate," as he was named by his admirers, said that his principal speeches cost him two sleepless nights: one in which he was thinking what to say, the other, in which he was lamenting over what he might have said better. Cicero, according to Plutarch, not only wanted courage in arms, but in his speaking also. He began timidly, and in many cases he scarcely left off trembling even when he got thoroughly into the current and substance of his speech.

Orators have often been very diffident in social life. The great Mr. Pitt was exceedingly shy in his private intercourse with men. Lord Camden was on terms of great intimacy with him, and one day remarked, as Pitt was at his house:

"My children have heard so much about you that they are very anxious to have a glimpse of the great man. They are now at dinner. Will you oblige me by going in with me a moment?"

"O, pray don't!" said the orator, in great alarm. "What on earth could I say to them?"

"Give them, at least, the pleasure of seeing you," replied his lordship, as he half led, half pushed him into the room.

The Prime Minister of England approached the little group. There he stood, looking alternately at the father and the children, and twirling his hat for a few minutes without being able to utter a sentence.

Very different was the habit of Fox. "What a man Fox is!" said Walpole. "After his long and exhausting speech on Hastings' trial he was seen handing ladies into their coaches with all the gayety and prattle of an idle gallant."

When Daniel Webster was a school boy, he tells us "Many a piece did I commit to memory and rehearse it over and over again in my room. But when the day came when the school collected, when my name was called and I saw all eyes turned upon my seat, I could not raise myself from it."

Cowper's friends procured him a place as clerk in the House of Lords, where his duties only required him to stand up and read parliamentary notices and documents. The thought of standing up before such an audience was so terrible to him, that as the time drew on, he was in agony of apprehension, and tried to hang himself.

The famous Curran had a sensitiveness in public speaking which often hindered his success. He was painfully affected by any mark of inattention in his audience. If any one fell asleep, or stared vacantly about the room, his eloquence began to flag, and much of his power was lost.

This fact became so well known, at last, that some of the eminent advocates opposed to him resorted to unworthy tricks to help their clients. If they saw that Curran was particularly eloquent, and was carrying the jury with him, they would hire some man to go into the court room, and station near Curran, to show signs of weariness by visible and loud yawning. The stratagem rarely failed of success. His eloquence would forsake him; he would falter, forget the thread of his argument, and bring his peroration to an abrupt and unsatisfactory conclusion.

Daniel Webster was once about to make a speech at a Boston poultry show, when he happened to be present. He stood up in response to a general call, but no sooner had "Ladies and Gentlemen" passed his lips, than a giant cochin protested with such a frightful crow, that the orator sat down without uttering another word.

Dr. John Ritchie, the great voluntary leader, had charged the ministers of the Established church with living the lives of Sybarites, faring sumptuously every day and clothing themselves in raiment. At a public meeting Dr. Guthrie had to reply to this. He was standing on the front of the platform; his boots were strong, iron-clad, country boots, and his trowsers were besattered with mud, for he had just walked twenty miles. Looking around the audience and holding out his foot, he pointed to it and said:

"My friends, Dr. Ritchie declares that we are a set of dandies. Do you call that the foot of a dandy?"

The appeal was irresistible, and was responded to with great laughter on the part of the audience, and with cheers which were redoubled as Dr. Guthrie stood holding out his foot and looking about him with the quietest and most comical smile.

The longest speech on record is believed to have been that made by Dr. De Cosmos in the legislature of British Columbia when a measure was pending, the passage of which would have taken from a great many settlers their lands. De Cosmos was in a hopeless minority. The job had been held back until the eve of the close of the session. Unless legislation was taken before noon of a given day, the act of confiscation would fail. The day before the expiration of the limitation, De Cosmos got the floor about 10 a. m. and began a speech against the bill. Its friends cared little, for they supposed that by 1 or 2 o'clock he would be through and the bill could be put on its passage.

One o'clock came and De Cosmos was speaking still; he hadn't more than entered upon his subject. At two o'clock he was saying, "In the second place." At three o'clock he produced a fearful bundle of evidence, and insisted on reading it. The majority began to have a suspicion of the truth: he was going to speak until the next noon and kill the bill. For awhile they made merry of it, but as it came on to dusk they began to get alarmed. They tried interruptions, but soon abandoned them because each interruption afforded him a chance to digress and gain time.

They tried to shout him down, but that gave him a breathing space, and finally they settled down to watch the combat between strength of will and weakness of body. They gave him no mercy, no adjournment for dinner; no chance to more than wet his lips with water; no wandering from the subject; no sitting down. Twilight darkened; the gas was lit, members slipped out to dinner in relays and returned to sleep in squads; but De Cosmos went on with his speech. The speaker, to whom he was addressing himself, was alternately dozing, snoring, and trying to look wide awake.

Day dawned, and the majority slipped out in squads to breakfast and the speaker still held on. It cannot be said that it was a very logical, eloquent or sustained speech. There were digressions in it, repetitions also; but still the speaker kept on. At last noon came to a baffled majority, livid with rage and impotence, and to a single man who was triumphant, though his voice had sunk to a husky whisper, his eyes were almost shut, and were bleared and blood shot, his legs tottered under him, and his baked lips were cracked and smeared with blood. De Cosmos had spoken twenty-six hours, and had saved the settlers their lands. Philadelphia Press.

COTTONWOOD

HOT SPRINGS,

MAHONVILLE,
LAKE COUNTY, COLORADO.
PROPRIETORS:
REV. JOSEPH ADAMS, M.D., A. D. ADAMS, Homœopathic Physician and MR. G. R. HARTENSTEIN, Attorney at Law, Leadville.

The Springs are situated at the mouth of Cottonwood Canon, in a most beautiful country, salubrious atmosphere surrounded by scenery of the most gorgeous description, being in the very heart of the grand range of the Rocky Mountains, Mount Yale being immediately to the north and Princeton, south, while the crystal waters of the Cottonwood river (abundant with trout), twist, turn, leap, and plunge into the Arkansas about six miles from the Hot Springs.

The medicinal virtues of these springs have not been fully tested, but after an experience of five years they have been found to be a specific for catarrh, rheumatism and leaded persons; also highly beneficial for sore eyes, indigestion, dyspepsia, and all scrofulous affections. The above proprietors have only recently purchased these springs, and at present can only accommodate about a dozen persons. We are now busy in erecting a building which will enable us to entertain about fifty patients and hope to be ready in about three months from date.

A very comfortable bath house has just been completed, adjoining the house, so that the most delicate can now bathe without exposure to colds.

TERMS.

Our present terms are $2 per day or $10 per week, including baths for those who are able to help themselves, but those requiring an assistant will be charged accordingly. No reasonable effort will be spared to make all comfortable and happy.

The Matt France Hose Company No. 1 meets for practice this evening.

The soda fountain begins to loom up as a great possibility of the near future.

The oyster can now go on his summer vacation. The letter "r" has dropped out of the month.

The train from the south last night was crowded with passengers, many of whom got off here.

Pitching horse shoes is a favorite amusement by the young men while waiting for the train at the depot.

The Cheyenne toll road has been completed to Beaver Park, and the work is to be rapidly pushed forward.

It is announced that the name of the Colorado Central railroad is to be known hereafter as "Colorado Division of the Union Pacific railroad."

A large party of ladies and gentlemen from Joplin, Mo., bound for Leadville, arrived in this city last night. The National Hotel entertained a portion of the party.

We regret to learn of the death of Mr. John B. Maude, vice president of the St. Louis Smelting and Refining Company. Mr. Maude died at Leadville last Tuesday, April 29th. His body was taken east yesterday.

Mr. O. H. Peck, on Nevada Ave., has just placed a beautiful rustic fence around his grounds. The hinges and latch upon the rustic gate of this rustic fence are of a new pattern and very unique and original. There is a breadth of design and a massiveness of construction about these hinges worthy of Michael Angelo.

It has been supposed that the phrase "Don't you forget it" was a pure Americanism, but Rollin, in his Ancient History, volume 4, page 439, relates the following anecdote concerning Socrates: "Cito," said he, "and these were his last words, "we owe a cock to Esculapius; acquaint yourself of this vow for me, and don't you forget it."

"Birds of a feather flock together," says the old adage, but we observe that on a certain street the following birds of quite dissimilar plumage occupy adjacent domiciles: A high city official, the correspondent of a Boston journal, a prominent state official, and a humble but industrious author, whose specialty lies in biographical sketches of noted men.

It is rumored that the committee appointed to draft articles of association of a State Historical Society, are considering the feasibility of holding the meeting at Colorado Springs in July, at the same time of the meeting of the State Press Association. An organization will then be perfected. We hope they will consider such a course of action feasible, as they will be heartily received.

Personal.

Mr. Harry Fowler came down from Denver yesterday.

Mr. Willis Sweet, of the Mountaineer, went to Denver yesterday.

Mr. B. F. Crowell and Mr. W. H. Harrison left on the evening train last night for Leadville. Mr. Crowell, as one of the owners of the Robert E. Lee mine, goes to look after the interests of the property in a suit at law, which, it will be remembered, has been brought against it. Mr. Harrison is the counsel in the case, which is to be tried in the Lake county court during the present term.

Aid for the Africans.

A meeting was held in the African M. E. church on Pueblo avenue last night by the Colored Aid Society, for the purpose of electing its officers. The following persons were elected: The Rev. A. W. Ramsey, president; Mr. George Rollins, vice-president; Mr. Alex. McEaugh, treasurer; Mr. J. H. Holmes, secretary. The soliciting committee was constituted as follows: Messrs. C. R. Robinson, A. C. Porter and O. W. Carter. These gentlemen will call upon the citizens of Colorado Springs with the subscription papers and they hope that their white friends will respond liberally.

A State Geologist Appointed.

Governor F. W. Pitkin appointed Prof. J. Alden Smith, of Boulder county, to the position of state geologist, last Wednesday. The appointment is for two years and is especially a compliment to Prof. Smith as he has held the position during the past term.

It is true that the office of state geologist is an important one in any common wealth, but more especially is it true in a state possessing such a remarkable geological formation as our own.

We learn that Prof. Smith has accepted the position.

The Fruit Growers' Purse.

Lieutenant-Governor H. A. W. Tabor has announced to Secretary Thomas of the Industrial Association, that he will present a purse of $50 to the fruit grower who offers the finest display of fruits at the state fair in September.

Secretary Thomas has accepted the offer of the lieutenant-governor and it is anticipated that there will be a good deal of emulation excited among fruit growers, who will naturally desire to secure the purse, not so much for its intrinsic value, perhaps, as for the honor of obtaining such a recognition of excellence.

The Insane Asylum Superintendent.

There has been considerable rivalry among physicians to secure the appointment of Superintendent of the State Insane Asylum. An almost unlimited number of petitions have been presented to the governor asking him to appoint the favorite man of the different petitioners.

The opening of the asylum is anticipated with much interest by the people of Pueblo, and now that the legislative enactments pertaining to this matter have been made comprehensive and all the other minor difficulties cleared away, the appointment follows as a matter of course.

The bill provided that the superintendent should be a graduate of a medical college. This disposed of the claims of several who had an idea that the position would call for no other requirements than the possession of faculties to boss around and keep the patients from escaping. Last Wednesday Governor Pitkin made the appointment, the recipient of the gubernatorial favor being Dr. P. R. Thombs, of Pueblo. The gentleman is well known throughout Southern Colorado and has a good reputation as a physician. He has accepted the superintendency and will at once proceed east to make a tour of some of the well known hospitals and glean some information concerning their management, that will prove valuable to him here. The property purchased by the insane commissioners, including the residence of Hon. C. M. Chilcott, has been turned over to the state for their use. Yesterday afternoon a certificate of indebtedness amounting to $13,000 was issued to Mr. Chilcott's attorney, in payment for the property. The rooms and premises will have to be altered somewhat, but it is the opinion of the state authorities that the asylum can be got in shape for the reception of patients by the first of next month.

Some Freighting Facts.

Through the courtesy of Messrs. True & Sutton we are enabled to give our readers some interesting facts concerning the present status of the freighting business at the present time. The high prices which freighters demanded during the winter have been moderately reduced and the great blockade caused by the accumulation of freight has been broken.

There is still an immense quantity of goods awaiting transportation but this is no longer a forced delay, but a delay at the option of shippers who are holding them back for still lower rates. Freighters, however, are somewhat averse to loading at the present prices but there is no difficulty experienced on this account from the fact that there are plenty of outfits upon the roads.

The rates per ton held steadily at $3 and upwards, until April 19th, when they dropped suddenly down to $2.50, and on the 29th there was a still further depression to $1.75.

The rates now range from $2.50 to $1.75 notwithstanding the fact that the roads between Colorado Springs and Leadville were never in a worse condition than now. The cause of this reduction is readily to be found in the fact that large accessions have recently been made to the freighting outfits. During the winter there was only a limited number of wagons upon the road and almost an unlimited amount of freight to be transported, hence prices ran high, and even at the advanced rates freight accumulated faster than it could be moved. Now, however, the situation is changed. Large numbers of freighters have arrived here, having crossed the plains, and the competition has worked its inevitable result in a reduction of rates.

Freight is coming in with unabated rapidity, but it is moved with commensurate speed.

To show that there is no appreciable stagnation in the freighting business, we will merely mention the fact that during the month just past True & Sutton shipped one million, one hundred and twenty-eight thousand pounds of merchandise to Leadville. The ore consigned to them and forwarded to Pueblo, Omaha and Golden amounted to eight hundred and eight thousand pounds.

It will be seen by these figures that about two million pounds of freight have been handled by this one firm during the last month.

For the present week True & Sutton have a record of two hundred thousand pounds, which is not so bad for four days.

It is not believed that the high prices which ruled during the winter will again obtain, but there is freight to be moved, and the rates will be governed, as they always are, by the laws of supply and demand.

Farewell to May Day.

May day dawned upon us as bright and fair as it could have dawned in Merrie England, but we doubt if any venturous maiden sought the dew, fabled to secure its possessor wondrous beauty. There was no May-pole erected on the village green, and we say no merry dancers—unless the flag staff on the plaza could be imagined a May-pole and the children playing around it May revelers.

It is the fashion to decry the present and to laud the past. It is the fashion to believe that all the good times were the old times and that those who happen to be alive now have fallen upon evil days. If this fashion were a new one it might be wisdom to argue against it, to endeavor to discourage it, but it is not a new one, and apropos of this assertion we give the following lament written by Edward Lovey-bond in 1754, in which the decadence of May-day observances is mourned in graceful yet simple verse:

THE TEARS OF OLD MAY-DAY.

Led by the decent train of vernal hours,
And vernal airs, uprose the gentle May,
Blushing she rose and blushing rose the flowers
That spring spontaneous in her genial ray.

Her locks with Heaven's ambrosial dews were bright,
And amorous zephyrs fluttered on her breast,
With every shifting gleam of morning light
The colors shifted of her rainbow vest.

Imperial ensigns graced her smiling form,
A golden key and golden wand she bore;
This charms to peace each sullen Eastern storm,
And that unlocks the [illegible]'s copious store.

Vain hope, no more in choral bands unite
Her virgin votaries, and at early dawn,
Sacred to May and Love's mysterious rite,
Bright the light dewdrops from the mangled lawn.

To her no more Augusta's wealthy pride
Pours the full tribute of Potosi's mine;
Nor fresh blown garlands village maids provide,
A purer offering at her rustic shrine.

No more the May pole's verdant height around,
To valour's games th' adventurous youth advance;
To merry bells and tabor's sprightly sound,
Wake the loud carol and the sportive dance.

The Total Abstinence Convention.

The delegates to the Prohibition Convention, the call for which was issued several months ago, met in Denver last Wednesday. The object of the convention was the organization of a State Prohibition Alliance.

The meeting was held in Good Templars Hall, and was called to order at 10 o'clock a. m. by Mr. A. M. Ellsworth, of Denver, who stated that the meeting was the result of a call issued in January last, at which time a committee was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws for a prohibition temperance alliance. An organization was then perfected by the choice of the following officers:

President, C. A. Brooks, of Fort Collins.

Secretary, E. A. Noyes, of Denver.

The secretary then read a number of letters from temperance people throughout the state who were unable to attend the meeting.

A committee consisting of Revs. H. L. Beardsley, of Longmont, R. J. Van Valkenburg, of Erie, and Mr. W. E. Pabor, of Longmont, appointed on credentials, reported the following delegates as entitled to sit with the convention:

Denver, E. P. Annis, J. W. Boucher, Emma Annis, Mary J. Ross, T. E. Bliss, Carrie Mutter, Mrs. Noyes, Miss Newby, F. A. Noyes, Mrs. C. M. Lambert, Charles Latuor, W. G. Sprague, Francis Gallup, W. J. Phillips, John Dove, St. Clair Ross, H. M. Rhoads, W. W. Hodge, B. W. Matterson, Mrs. J. S. Newby, Mrs. S. H. Norton, C. M. Leland, C. C. Salter, H. G. Hilton, H. R. Crosby, A. Hurd, T. Worthington, J. Nagle.

Boulder, Henry Logan, W. L. Slutz.

Central, W. M. B. Sarell.

Fort Collins, C. A. Brooks.

Arvada, C. S. Uzzell, J. Court, B. F. Wadsworth.

Greeley, Mrs. Eli Annis, B. H. Yerkes, T. C. Morley.

Nevadaville, D. L. Jones.

Morrison, R. H. Stewart, W. C. Roby.

Evans, D. M. Gordon.

Loveland, W. H. McCreery, Mrs. A. S. Washburn, A. Leonard.

Longmont, W. E. Pabor, H. L. Beardsley, Mrs. J. B. Thompson.

Erie, R. J. Van Valkenburg.

After the preliminary business had been transacted the committee appointed to draft a constitution presented a report which was read and on motion accepted.

The preamble in the constitution was referred to a special committee consisting Rev. Mr. Yerkes, W. L. Slutz and Mr. Sanderson for revision.

Article I. providing the name of the organization, Colorado Prohibition Alliance, was read and adopted.

Article II. providing for the membership was read and adopted.

Article III. defining the pledge, provoked considerable discussion, and was finally laid over until the afternoon session.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Ellsworth, Noyes and Roby was appointed to arrange for a public meeting.

The chair announced that the ladies of Denver Lodge of Good Templars had prepared dinner for the delegates and at the hour of 12 m. the convention adjourned to meet at 2 p. m.

Upon the reassembling of the convention article 3 of the constitution was taken up and was thoroughly discussed by Dr. Bliss, C. M. Leland, A. C. Chittenden, Colonel H. Logan, W. E. Pabor, W. M. B. Sarell, Rev. Mr. McCreery and others, and a substitute was adopted.

The full text of the constitution as finally adopted is as follows:

WHEREAS, The liquor traffic is the great curse of the age burdening the people with taxation, filling our alms houses with paupers, our prisons with criminals and destroying the health, morals and happiness of its natives; is a public school for the instruction of the young in crime, and its doors are always open; is a traffic licensed by the state whose fruits are always evil; is a traffic against which our public officials will not enforce law; tends to control elections and is the enemy of our state and is the foe to everything for which a state should exist.

Therefore, recognizing thus our greatest enemy, we the undersigned citizens of Colorado, organize ourselves together to work in every honorable way for the destruction of this infamous traffic and the reformation of its many victims as well as to save the young from ever falling under the baneful influence of the wine cup. We pledge to each other and to the world our most earnest and persevering efforts for the accomplishment of this great object, for our guide and government in our associate capacity we adopt the following:

ARTICLE I. This society shall be known as the State Prohibition Alliance.

ART. II. It shall consist of such persons as shall pay to the society certain semi-annual dues and agree to the terms of article 3 of the constitution.

ART. III. The members of this association pledge to each other and the world that they will abstain from the use, as a beverage, of all intoxicating liquors. That they will not manufacture or traffic in them to be thus used, but will make direct and persevering efforts to extend the principles and blessings of total abstinence. That they will use their political influence, in every lawful way, at caucuses, nominating conventions, and at the polls, to advance the cause of prohibition, whether by securing or selecting candidates from existing parties, or, if necessary, by nominating other men of known and tried temperance principles. The executive board to have full power to carry out, when occasion requires, the provision of this section.

ART. IV. County, ward and precinct organizations, in harmony with this body, shall be recognized as auxiliaries in the work of carrying out the principles of this Alliance.

ART. V. The funds of this Alliance shall consist of such money as may be received as dues or donations from its members and from other private and public contributions to its treasury.

ART. VI. The annual meeting of the Alliance shall be held in the month of May, the day and place to be fixed by the Executive Board.

ART. VII. The officers of this Alliance shall consist of a president, one vice president for each county, a recording and a corresponding secretary, a treasurer and a committee consisting of eight members, who, with the president and secretaries, shall form the executive board, five of whom shall constitute a quorum to transact business.

ART. VIII. The officers of the Alliance shall severally hold their offices one year or until their successors shall have been duly elected.

ART. IX. Within a period of one week after the annual election, the retiring officers shall deliver to their successors in office all books, records, moneys or property of every description belonging to the alliance.

ART. X. The constitution may be altered or amended at any annual meeting of the Alliance, by a vote of two-thirds of the members present.

After the adoption of the constitution the alliance was formally organized by the election of the following officers:

President, B. W. Matterson; recording secretary, A. M. Ellsworth; corresponding secretary and treasurer, F. A. Noyes.

Executive board W. E. Pabor, B. J. Wadsworth, R. J. Van Valkenburg, John Dove, J. C. Wright, W. H. McCreery, Mrs. A. L. Washburn, Mrs. J. B. Thompson.

On motion the treasurer was required to give bonds in the sum of $500.

W. E. Pabor then offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the Colorado Prohibition Alliance recognizes all the true friends of the temperance cause, under whatever name, as fellow laborers with it in the same field, and we recommend a mutual forbearance of criticisms and judgment, in order that peace and harmony may prevail and that we may present a united front to the common enemy.

Mrs. A. L. Washburn offered the following, which was adopted amid much enthusiasm:

Resolved, That we will gladly hail the day when women may aid at the polls in the suppression of the traffic in rum.

On motion the vice-presidents were instructed to organize county alliances in their respective counties.

A committee was appointed to consider the advisability of establishing a temperance monthly.

In the evening addresses were made by the Rev. A. J. Chittenden of Boulder and the Rev. A. C. Brooks, after which the convention adjourned.
